Business Edge opens doors for insights on latest acr technology and industry training

Business Edge, which recently picked up a national Award as ACR Consultant of the Year, is throwing open its doors for a major two-day industry event on May 6 and 7.

The company is staging a new "Technology Training Day" on May 6 to deliver two concurrent Sessions providing in-depth theoretical and hands-on practical experience with the ClimaCheck plant Performance Analysis tool, and the "Fri3Oil" Recovery-Recycling-Flushing system.

The cost of training is being heavily subsidised to encourage attendance.

ClimaCheck, which also recently picked up an Award for Refrigeration Product of the Year 2009, is now being launched in a new generation version.

Now called the ClimaCheck Performance Analyser Professional (PA PRO), the system boasts several enhancements that make it even easier to use and extends its application. Full details will be given at the event. [Editors: a separate release will be issued shortly on the new ClimaCheck roll-out].

The "Technology Training Day" will be directly followed by another "Technical Open Day" on May 7. Expert speakers will cover several topics of industry interest, including preparing for F-Gas Certification and Business Edge's F-Gas Course; the principles behind ClimaCheck and Fri3Oil, and how to harness the latest software to improve AC&R system design and productivity. Entrance to the "Technology Training Day" is free.

Mike Creamer, managing director, said: "It has been an exciting start to the year for us. The two Awards reflect the terrific teamwork and dedication on the part of Business Edge staff".

"The events are an opportunity for those who have heard about what we do – training, software, consultancy and the amazing technology on offer – and who would like an introduction to the practical capabilities. People can be sure of a warm welcome, great networking opportunities and stimulating presentations. Oh, and rather nice food and refreshments!"

Tickets for the popular events, which take place at the company's Waterlooville, Hampshire headquarters, are available on a first-come-first-served basis.
